

THE GRAND GRANDEUR FERNBROOK GARDEN

Lush, plush and very, very romantic. Nothing can get any more elegant than this. The rush and flush of old world romance and whirl wind extravagance.

Fernbrook Gardens, the brainchild of Al de Veyra, has captured the hearts of a many marrying couples. Tucked away like a secret castle in the south of the metro, this tropical garden events venue proudly bares a collection of grand function halls, designed with the Victorian and Byzantine Era in mind.

Each room is interconnected by a lagoon-like promenade that serves guests with a dose of fresh air. Glance up and find yourself underneath the mesmerizing beauty of the Grand Conservatory, an imposing hundred foot high dome-like structure—the iconic design for which Fernbrook Gardens has been widely known for.

Drawing attention from curious guests is an interesting, sculptured fountain, which stands in the middle of the promenade. Everywhere else, small man-made waterfalls and plants and trees of diversities dot the place.

Also equally imposing in grandeur is the baroque-style Chapel, which was tastefully designed and built within the confines of the property, to accommodate wedding ceremonies in small and large scales.

For your wedding reception, choose among the connecting reception venues that draw classical design inspirations from either the Victorian Era or Byzantine Architecture.

Byzantine 1 has a maximum capacity for 250 people, has a refreshing ambiance of an enclosed tropical paradise and features a small outdoor garden overlooking a water pond featuring white swans, mallard ducks, and Koi fish.

Meanwhile, the Byzantine 2 can house a maximum capacity of 200 people and has an enchanting interior that boasts of a secret garden surrounded by waterfalls and a well-manicured landscape.

Victorian 1 can contain as much as 250 people and incorporates a majestic Victorian charm embraced by the soothing effects of nature.

Victorian 2 is the perfect venue for grand occasions, as it can accommodate as much as 450 people.

With its fully air-conditioned, all-weather resistant garden venues, guests and celebrants can enjoy the beauty of the outdoors in the convenience and grandeur of an indoor venue.

The whole estate simply evokes a dreamy and romantic feeling that promises a wedding like no other.
